NEW! HIGH PERFORMANCE ULTRAVIOLET TRANSILLUMINATOR for DNA-Related Research

- Four Times the 302nm Transmission of Competitive Transilluminators
- Harmful 254nm Transmission Reduced by 50 Times
- Cooler Filter Surface Minimizes Photodamage

With the phenomenal growth of DNA-related research, there is an increasing demand for more efficient transilluminators with higher intensity 302nm transmission. The new Spectroline® TR-302 Transilluminator fills this need with superior performance and features that are unmatched by any other units.

Newly developed light sources in the TR-302 produce an intensity of up to 4,000 $\mu\text{W}/\text{cm}^2$ — four times the transmission of competitive units! Yet the transmission of harmful 254nm is reduced by 50 times (to less than 4 $\mu\text{W}/\text{cm}^2$) to minimize photodamage of gels.

In addition, a highly efficient cooling fan permits lower filter surface temperatures to lessen the effects of photobleaching, photoinicking, and photodimerization. The higher 302nm transmission, coupled with significantly reduced photodamage, assures excellent fluorescent contrast in the analysis of DNA/ethidium bromide complexes in electrophoresis gels. This allows a higher percentage of viable cells to be available for further use.

For viewing the gels in ambient light, the TR-302 Transilluminator can be used with the new Spectroline® CX-302 Cabinet. Both are available in 110V and 220V models.

All units are in stock for immediate delivery. Write or call today for more information.
